

Leading Edge Administrator

Leading instructional staff in effective use of technology is a necessary skill in today's K-12 institutions. If you have a sound foundation in the use of technology and are ready to lead others in researched based connections between content, pedagogy, and technology then the Leading Edge Certification for the Administrator is right for you. The Leading Edge Alliance—a group of nonprofit organizations, universities, and governmental bodies—has developed a certification program for K-12 administrators. The certification is a national program to prepare instructional leaders for leadership in educational technology. This certification focuses on site, district, and regional administrators and how to effectively utilize technology tools, resources, and implement innovative solutions to advance student achievement. Learn how to foster educator productivity and extend learning opportunities for all.

Learning Objectives:

- leading the learning
- millennial learning environments
- infusing innovation
- data-driven systematic improvement
- digital citizenship
- online learning
- mobile learning