

Leading Edge Online and Blended Teacher

If you have an interest in teaching online, or you are already teaching online and want to enhance your skills, then earning the Leading Edge Certification Online and Blended Teacher is ideal for you. The Leading Edge Alliance—a group of nonprofit organizations, universities, and governmental bodies—has developed a certification program for K-12 teachers. The certification is a national program to prepare instructional leaders for online and blended learning. Content includes building community, moderating discussions, supporting diverse learners, and implementing frequent formative assessments. Time to complete the curriculum is estimated at 45-65 hours, including portfolio work, but will vary based on participants' experience with the tools used and online learning style. This estimation is based on an individual with intermediate Internet computer skills.

Learning Objectives:

- pedagogy in the online environment
- building community
- online accessibility
- assessment and evaluation
- policies and preparation

Audience: Teachers, EdTech, Administrators
